2. Between 26 September and 6 October, the KVP unit in Prenzlau was inspected by about 130 officers of the KVP Department of the Ministry of the Interior. The officers stated that the status of training reached by the unit was unsatisfactory.<sup>2</sup>
3. Between 19 and 25 October, the 2d A-Kommando received another 12 armored personnel carriers. The unit had to transfer part of its motor vehicle equipment to a new division, the headquarters of which was being organized in Potsdam. Some of the units of this headquarters were stationed in Oranienburg. The division involved was allegedly stationed in Berlin.<sup>3</sup>

25X1 1. [redacted] Comment. The total strength of Bereitschaft Prenzlau is estimated at about 7,000 men on the basis of these data. This indicates that the strength of the unit has hardly changed since late August. [redacted] not report the figures on the strength of the 3d A-Kommando in Droegeheide and of the engineer battalion. It is furthermore pointed out that the ration strength figures reported are subject to great fluctuations and that the error in estimate resulting from these fluctuations may amount to up to 1,000 men. As compared with the status of late August, the Tank S<sup>2</sup> Kommando (C-Kommando) has about 130 fewer personnel. There is a possibility that this Kommando transferred personnel to the new Mechanized Bereitschaft in Potsdam. [redacted] 25X1
